PARAMETER E : ICT RESOURCES

SYSTEMS - INPUTS AND PROCESSES

		LIST OF SUPPORTING DOCUMENTS	LINK TO THE SUPPORTING DOCUMENTS
S.1	The institution has provided ICT resources to support student learning.	The institution has provided a wide range of ICT resources to support student learning, ensuring that students have access to the tools and technologies necessary for their academic success. The University has a 3-year Medium Term Plan (ISSP 2024-2026), which serves as a roadmap for the ICT development of the institution, outlining strategic goals for enhancing ICT resources. As part of its Smart Campus Development Goal, the university has already implemented two major ICT projects, marking significant progress toward creating a more technologically advanced campus. The availability of a Learning Management System (LMS) deployed by the ICT Office supports student learning through online modalities, facilitating flexible and accessible learning experiences. Additionally, various computer laboratories equipped with up-to-date ICT resources are available for student use, with logbooks documenting regular student engagement with these facilities. The development of instructional materials, including digital resources and multimedia content, is also supported to enhance the learning experience. Faculty are evaluated on their use of ICT in teaching, ensuring that technology is integrated effectively in the classroom. Furthermore, photos and documentation of ICT resources in use, such as computers, projectors, and design software, serve as evidence of the institution's commitment to providing a technology-rich learning environment.	Link to the Supporting Documents
S.2	There is a good ratio of students to terminals and other ICT equipment.	The institution ensures a good ratio of students to terminals and other ICT equipment, providing ample access to technological resources for academic activities. With well-maintained computer laboratories and sufficient ICT equipment, students are able to engage effectively in their coursework, research, and other learning tasks. The careful allocation of resources ensures that each student has the opportunity to utilize the available terminals, minimizing overcrowding and enhancing the learning experience. This thoughtful distribution of ICT tools supports the institution's commitment to creating an accessible and technology-driven environment for both faculty and students. IMPLEMENTATION

I.1	The institution makes effective use of Information and Communications Technology (ICT) resources to support student learning and to manage its academic and administrative programs.
	I.1.1. There is adequate allocation of state-of-the-art ICT resources of different units based on need and national standards.	The institution ensures the adequate allocation of state-of-the-art ICT resources across various units, tailored to meet the specific needs of each department while adhering to national standards. This is supported by comprehensive work and financial plans, which outline the budget allocation for ICT resources and the strategic objectives for their integration into teaching and learning processes. These plans ensure that resources are distributed efficiently and effectively, meeting the evolving needs of both students and faculty. For instance, the work and financial plan from the College of Nursing and the reorientation and retooling plans from IDEA illustrate the institution's proactive approach in providing updated ICT tools to enhance academic delivery. Furthermore, inventory documents and training records show that ICT equipment is regularly assessed and maintained, ensuring it remains up-to-date and capable of supporting a high-quality learning environment. The alignment of these documents with the institution's goals guarantees that the ICT resources are always in line with the current educational and technological standards.	Link to the Supporting Documents
	I.1.2. ICT resources are accessible for use by both faculty and students.	The institution ensures that ICT resources are accessible for use by both faculty and students, providing a variety of tools to enhance the learning experience. This includes access to contracts and software subscriptions for essential platforms such as Zoom and the BU Learning Management System (LMS), which are available to both faculty and students. These resources support online learning and teaching, enabling faculty to deliver lessons remotely while students can engage with course materials and participate in virtual classrooms. The usage of LMS is well-documented, with faculty utilizing the platform for course management, assignment submissions, and grading, while students benefit from its user-friendly interface for accessing lectures, resources, and discussions. Furthermore, the institution provides training and support to ensure that both faculty and students can maximize the potential of these ICT tools, ensuring that they are effectively integrated into the academic experience.	Link to the Supporting Documents
	I.1.3. Training for the use of ICT to support learning is periodically provided to the faculty.	The institution provides periodic training to faculty members to ensure they are proficient in using ICT tools to support student learning. This training includes sessions on the use of key platforms like the Learning Management System (LMS) and other technology resources essential for teaching. Faculty members are equipped with the necessary skills to integrate ICT into their courses effectively, enhancing the overall learning experience for students. These training sessions are regularly documented and supported with materials to ensure faculty stay updated on the latest tools and practices in educational technology. The institution's commitment to faculty development ensures continuous growth in the use of ICT, aligning with modern teaching standards and fostering an environment of technological innovation.	Link to the Supporting Documents

	I.1.4. Training for the use of ICT facilities is made available to students.	Training for the use of ICT facilities is made available to students to ensure they are well-equipped to leverage technology for their academic success. The institution offers various training sessions and workshops, including photo documentation of general assemblies and logs of computer laboratory usage, which focus on the effective use of ICT resources such as computer laboratories, online platforms, and software tools essential for learning. These sessions are designed to enhance students' digital literacy, allowing them to navigate learning management systems, access online resources, and utilize various technological tools for research, collaboration, and coursework. The logbooks documenting student engagement with ICT resources and photo documentation of training sessions serve as evidence of the institution's commitment to providing continuous support and ensuring that students are capable of maximizing the potential of ICT facilities to support their academic endeavors.	Link to the Supporting Documents
I.2	The established policies regarding the selection and effective use of information and communication technology resources are religiously followed.	The established policies regarding the selection and effective use of information and communication technology resources are religiously followed to ensure that ICT resources are utilized efficiently and in alignment with institutional goals. This commitment is reflected in various documents, including computer laboratory guidelines, orderliness and tidiness reports from BUCIT, and administrative orders on the designation of library technicians, which outline the procedures and responsibilities for managing ICT resources. Additionally, memo documents and inventory reports further ensure compliance with policies governing the allocation, usage, and maintenance of ICT equipment. These documents serve as evidence that the institution upholds its policies, ensuring ICT resources are used effectively and in accordance with national standards, benefiting both faculty and students.	Link to the Supporting Documents
I.3	Adequate and continual support to affect learning on how to use ICT resources and access information in different formats are provided to faculty and students.	Adequate and continual support to enhance learning on how to use ICT resources and access information in different formats is consistently provided to both faculty and students. This support is reflected in various initiatives, including logbooks documenting the usage of computer laboratories, which track how faculty and students engage with ICT resources. Additionally, the training sessions and workshops for both faculty and students ensure they are equipped with the skills to navigate learning platforms, utilize software tools, and access information in diverse formats. The photo documentation of training events and laboratory session reports further demonstrate the institution's commitment to providing ongoing support, helping faculty and students continually develop their digital literacy and maximize the use of available ICT resources. OUTCOMES
O.1	Updated instructional materials are available.	Updated instructional materials are readily available to ensure that faculty and students have access to the most current and relevant resources for their academic needs. This is supported by various documents, such as certificates of developed instructional materials and actual instructional materials produced by faculty, ensuring that course content is aligned with the latest educational standards and ICT tools. In addition, memos on the number of faculty subject to evaluation for their instructional materials help monitor and maintain the quality of teaching resources. The institution prioritizes the continuous update and development of instructional materials, ensuring that faculty have the necessary resources to deliver high-quality education to students.	Link to the Supporting Documents
O.2	Students use ICT in the academic activities and are challenged to create innovative projects/outputs.	Students actively use ICT in their academic activities and are encouraged to create innovative projects and outputs that demonstrate their mastery of technology. This is supported by various forms of documentation, such as photo documentation of student outputs produced within the ICT laboratories, showcasing how students apply their knowledge and skills in real-world projects. For example, videography outputs uploaded to Google Drive and student outputs in various formats serve as tangible evidence of students' use of ICT in their coursework. These outputs highlight how students are challenged to leverage technology for creative and academic purposes, fostering innovation and digital literacy within their academic journey. O.3	Faculty use ICT for teaching, thus making classes interesting and challenging.	Faculty use ICT for teaching, making classes more engaging and challenging by incorporating technology to enhance the learning experience. This is reflected in various photo documentation of classroom monitoring, teaching delivery, and evaluation, which demonstrate how ICT tools, such as projectors and digital platforms, are integrated into teaching. Faculty members employ ICT resources like the Learning Management System (LMS) and other digital tools to present course materials dynamically, facilitate interactive discussions, and evaluate student performance. These technologies not only support the curriculum but also encourage students to engage in a more interactive and modern learning environment, making the educational experience more stimulating and relevant to today's digital world. Best Practice:

- The institution prioritizes the allocation of funds to improve ICT resources, facilitating effective instructional delivery. This initiative is exemplified by the ongoing Smart Campus Project, aimed at modernizing the university.
- Faculty receive Zoom accounts to support online classes and meetings.
- Faculty members received ICT gadgets to enhance their instructional capabilities, fostering highly interactive classes.
